Note to Readers of Psychological Science in the Public Interest (PSPI): PSPI is a semi-annual publication of the American Psychological Society. Ordinarily, each issue of PSPI will contain a single analysis of an important issue of public interest. All articles are commissioned by the editors, and PSPI does not accept unsolicited manuscripts. An article is commissioned by the editors only after careful vetting of both the topic and the authors. Topics chosen for commissioning are nominated from many sources, including editorial board members, APS Board of Directors, and members of APS. All members of APS are invited to nominate topics (and names of potential authors). Send nominations to either editor at: sjc9@Cornell.edu; rabjork@psych.ucla.edu. For a description of editorial policies governing PSPI manuscripts, please see the editorial in the May 2000 issue of Psychological Science.
