

Are you paying attention?

January 23, 2019

Earlier this summer, our team had the opportunity to join the Association for Psychological Science's annual conference in San Francisco. And while we were there, we got to talk to a few psychologists about the application of their research. In our final episode of the series is a discussion on perception and attention with Daniel Simons, Professor of Psychology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.