

Be It Resolved

January 06, 2012

The New York Times:

IT'S still early in 2012, so let's be optimistic. Let's assume you have made a New Year's resolution and have not yet broken it. Based on studies of past resolutions, here are some uplifting predictions:

- 1) Whatever you hope for this year — to lose weight, to exercise more, to spend less money — you're much more likely to make improvements than someone who hasn't made a formal resolution.
- 2) If you can make it through the rest of January, you have a good chance of lasting a lot longer.
- 3) With a few relatively painless strategies and new digital tools, you can significantly boost your odds of success.

Read the full story: The New York Times

See Roy Baumeister at the 24th APS Annual Convention: Society for the Teaching of Psychology Talk and Invited Symposium