

Financial Stress Hurts, Literally

June 14, 2016

Scientific American Mind:

Few things feel worse than not knowing when your next paycheck is coming. Economic insecurity has been shown to have a whole host of negative effects, including low self-esteem and impaired cognitive functioning. It turns out financial stress can also physically hurt, according to a paper published in February in Psychological Science.

Read the whole story: Scientific American Mind