

Mirror Movements Might Reflect ADHD in Kids

February 17, 2011

ABC News:

The cause of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, which affects roughly 5.4 million kids in the United States alone, remains unknown. But new research into “mirror movements” sheds light on the mysterious neurobehavioral disorder and might even aid in its diagnosis.

Read the whole story: ABC News