

Staring contests are automatic -- especially if you're bossy

March 11, 2011

MSNBC:

Sometimes you can win a battle without lifting a finger. Just think about the time you got into a staredown over that last open parking space in the Costco lot. Somebody blinked, right? Now, a new study suggests that we may engage in staring contests without even thinking about it, especially if we're people who like to run things.

Read the whole story: MSNBC