

The Mime And The Mind

April 14, 2021

When you watch a mime pull an invisible rope or run into an invisible wall you as the viewer are tricked into visualizing something that isn't there. But is it all in the mime? Or does the mind play a role?

Chaz Firestone, assistant professor of psychological and brain sciences at Johns Hopkins University joins Ira to discuss his latest research on how the mind “helps” us see these invisible objects.
