

Psychonomic Society Call for Nominations for 2017 Early Career Award

February 13, 2017

The Psychonomic Society Early Career Award annually honors the distinguished research accomplishments of our early career members and fellows. Each year, up to four awardees will be named. One nominee, whose research is closest to the areas of perception and attention, will receive the Steven Yantis Early Career Award. They will be recognized at the annual meeting and will receive both a glass and a $2,500 cash award. In addition, the awardees' airfare to the meeting will be paid. The 2017 Annual Meeting will be held in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, November 9–12.

Nominations close on March 15, and those selected for this year's awards will be notified by May. Please submit nominations to info@psychonomic.org.

Eligibility Criteria

- The nominee must be a Member or Fellow of the Psychonomic Society.
- The nominee must have completed their highest degree (typically PhD) no more than 10 years before the nomination date.

Nomination Procedures

- Nominations may be made by current Members, Fellows, or Emeritus Members of the Psychonomic Society.
- The nomination must include (a) the nominee's vita, (b) a list of up to four of the nominee's most significant publications, (c) a letter of endorsement from the nominator, and (d) a second letter of endorsement from another member of the Society. Letters should not exceed two pages.
- Self-nominations are not permitted.

Full details about the award are available here.

For information about the Psychonomic Society, membership benefits, and other information, click here www.psychonomic.org.